

COVID-19 and One Health: Connecting Research Perspectives

Organizers: Patrick Beary and Gail Phillips (Cornell Atkinson)

Date: Wednesday, May 6th, 2020; 12:00 – 1:30 PM

Zoom: <https://cornell.zoom.us/j/91879620493>

Abstract: Cornell Atkinson is interested in exploring deeper strategic engagement on the root cause challenges and the complex systems involved in and affected by zoonotic diseases. We are interested in learning more about Cornell researcher expertise, interests, and connections in these fields. Please register in advance to join us on Tuesday, May 6th, from 12:00 – 1:30 PM for this Cornell Atkinson web conference (via Zoom), held in the spirit of our Topical Lunches.

The agenda for our extended lunch meeting is below.

- Brief introduction by members of Cornell Atkinson's One Health Working Group
- Brief overview of current related funding mechanisms by Cornell Atkinson and other centers or groups on and off campus
- Lightning Round where each participant is invited to share in 90 seconds or less what they are currently doing, are interested in doing, relevant external partners, and ideas for collaboration in this area

In collaboration with Cornell's Master of Public Health Program, the Cornell China Center, the Cornell Wildlife Health Center, and the Vice Provost for International Affairs, the Cornell Atkinson Center for Sustainability is leading rapid response efforts to connect Cornell research in ways that address the health and economic impacts of the COVID-19 crisis.
